OUR SITUATION AS SEEN BY THE ENGLISH TORIES.—It has been the fond hope of every American that the collapse of the great rebellion would be succeeded by an era of profound peace, national tranquility and renewed prosperity. To our dismay we find we have been miserably deluded, without suspecting it, and that we are quietly living in a terrible state of anarchy and bloodshed. For this unhappy revelation we are indebted to the London Herald. That veracious journal, in its issue of June 1st, draws the following dismal picture of our present situation:

"The picture of Federal America emerging from a war and plunging into a revolution, exhibits all the horrors of that anarchy which desolated France when her most merciful demagogue demanded a million of heads. The parallel is almost complete. There are Jacobins at the White House. We hear of arbitrary arrests and secret trials. The clamor for blood is loud. Accused persons are slaughtered without the shadow or chance of trial. Evidence is manufactured wholesale. A political party, for the time victorious, insists upon the assassination of those whom it has conquered. The stain of a murderous instinct spreads over the disorganized commonwealth, and the tailor of Tennessee is applauded when he offers to act as the executioner of Jefferson Davis.

What shall we have next? Perhaps an Accusation Decree upon the old French model. Perhaps a Public Defense Commission, similarly initiated. Possibly, "a swift tribunal for traitors;" that is for all unpopular soldiers and politicians, death carts and scaffolds."

This is the sort of writing that goes down with John Bull at the present moment; and such is his splenetic mood at the success of the North, that we have no doubt that if the London Herald had asserted that the guillotine had been erected on Union Square, at the foot of Washington's statute, and was worked day and night by a high-pressure steam engine, he would have swallowed the story with the most charming credulity. The truth is, that not more than a dozen military executions have taken place during the whole war. History does not record another instance of the suppression of a great rebellion in which so little sacrifice of life was exacted by military or State justice.—N. Y. Times.

GOVERNOR BROWNLOW ON A PARDON CASE.—A characteristic letter from Governor Brownlow was received in Washington on the 20th of June last, in the matter of an application for pardon. The petitioner is the rebel Brig.-Gen. William H. Carroll, a very wealthy and once prominent citizen of Tennessee, and the same who is suspected of being connected with the rebel conspirators in Canada. It was but recently that Carroll employed counsel for the purpose of sueing the United States Government for the use of and damage done to his property by the appropriation and use of the same for army purposes. He now asks for pardon, however, and his case was referred to Governor Brownlow for suggestion. The Governor's letter in reply is received. He says: "This man Carroll, were he to come within the State of Tennessee, would not be permitted to live five minutes. The people would not tolerate his presence here. I can't say anything against so poor and mean a man as this, and I can't say anything for him; I, therefore, say nothing."

GENERAL PALMER.—Major General Palmer has returned to Kentucky, where he is deservedly popular among the Union men. He returns with additional power to protect all loyalists, white or black, in spite of pro-slavery laws or habits. It seems that Senator Wilson's bills of the last Congress freed some 120,000 of the slave women and children of Kentucky, so that a majority of the slaves of the State are now legally free. This exasperates the slaveholders, and they abuse and outrage the blacks at every opportunity. The President now avows his intention to give them full protection.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE.

FRIDAY MORNING, AUGUST 4, 1865.

The Principle that Must Govern.

Long ago, before this scheme of government had been developed into a system which could compare in excellence with some of the political structures that now exist, the sentiment or idea had already passed into the currency of a proverb, that "the public safety is the supreme law." The principle enunciated by this brief proverb, is one which it is not possible for a people to lose sight of for any very long period. Commotions are perpetually arising which compel governments to modify or direct their course so as to enable them to provide against the peculiar difficulties that may environ them. The public safety requires that measures should be taken to avert dangers that are likely to happen, as well as to meet those which are already at hand. In short, a government must be so constituted that in any emergency which may arise, it may be able to stand rather than be compelled to submit to those who may choose to disrupt and destroy it.

In the administration of our government during the last few years, this principle has been kept in view. The war itself was carried on against rebellious citizens because that "higher law" of government, which not only justifies them in defending their integrity but also lays them under obligations to do so, demanded that this course should be taken. No government can relinquish its right to defend itself by force, and survive a day thereafter. There can be a reverence for the mere form or shadow of authority after its vital principle is gone. A law is not a law unless there be power to enforce it. A government is not a government when men know that it will never undertake to employ force to punish those whose disaffection breaks out in acts of violence.

At the present time, and for the future, particularly until the gravest of our troubles and dangers are past, our Government will be compelled to adhere carefully to the course which prudence may dictate, and which a regard for the public safety may require. For example, in the matter of reconstruction, our desire to do nothing which may in any way, nearly or remotely, interfere with the privileges which the lately rebellious States may claim, must not lead the Government to the extreme of compromising its own safety by permitting those who are hostile to its policy to regain the power which has just been, with difficulty, wrested from them. The Government does not purpose to vex and annoy the Southern people by subjecting all their affairs to a system of odious espionage, nor to overthrow every principle of liberty by proscribing what their conduct shall be in relation to the less important details of civil administration; but it is under the necessity of seeing to it that the recovered States do not take such a course as will prove detrimental to the future peace of the nation. They must not be permitted to place men in power who entertain a thought in derogation of the supreme majesty of the General Government. Hereafter the people must steer wide of that "perilous rock" of State sovereignty, on which we were lately so nearly wrecked. In dealing with questions that arise in connection with the reorganization of the Southern States, a proper consideration for the public safety must be the guiding principle of our action. This course needs no justification. It is in conformity with nature and reason, and can never be disregarded without bringing a country into the extremest peril.

DESOLATION.—In Harper's Weekly of July 8th, a picture of a small part of the desolated city of Charleston is given. Than this representation, the imagination can form no sadder conception of utter ruin. "Thorns have come up in her palaces, nettles and brambles in her fortresses; it has become a habitation for dragons and a court for owls." Great buildings are in ruins; here the streets are heaped with the debris of once beautiful but now crumbled edifices; there, the water, no longer confined by the dikes which great shells have ploughed through, has rushed in and stands in stagnant pools in once busy thoroughfares. Gloom and desolation appear in every feature of the scene. An aged negro sits alone in the dreary waste, a fitting presence to preside over the darksome ruins. No circumstance is wanting to heighten the effect of the dreary scene. The desolation of other cities which of old, the prophets foresaw, never exceeded that which now sits brooding over the wretched place which a little while ago, by its hasty act of wickedness, threw wide the gates of destroying war. Verily, "how is Babylon become a desolation among the nations!"

THE FREEBOOTERS AGAIN.—Our dispatches this morning contain further accounts of the late doings of the pirate Shenandoah. It seems as if these vengeful outlaws entertain no idea of quitting their work of destruction. They went to the north, where they could find in unarmed whalemen, foes worthy of their Confederate metal. The valorous procedure of burning unarmed ships, precisely suits the "chivalrous" defenders of the "Confederate Government." If, as his "neutral" friends claim, there was the slightest excuse for the pirate at the beginning of his cruise, the fact that he now has full knowledge of the complete extinguishment of the government he pretends to represent, must prevent even his admirers from attempting to say a word for him. It is not probable that he will ever be captured, since he would much rather plunder whalemen than risk a fight with any man-of-war. So much time will run by before any of our armed vessels can reach the scene of his present operations that he will probably manage to elude pursuit. Meantime John Bull will find that the sportful career of his protege is costing him something. If our claims keep growing at the present rate, it will soon take a Province to pay for them.

THE LINCOLN MEDAL IN FRANCE.—Certain very zealous officials in France some time ago took occasion to anticipate what they supposed to be the will of their imperial master, by suppressing the popular subscription to the Lincoln medal. The French Government has hastened to relax the restriction thus imposed. The Constitutionnel of the 7th June, says:

> Several journals have spoken of a seizure effected at the house of M. Rigollet, of Chauvigny (Vienne), on the occasion of a subscription list being opened for a medal in honor of Lincoln. This seizure occurred solely in consequence of an application of the regulations concerning hawking, requiring a previous authorization, which had not been demanded. But the Administration have now given orders that the subscription to the medal of Lincoln shall meet no hindrance. The Government of the Emperor, whose sentiments were manifested in so signal a manner on the occasion of the crime committed against the President of the United States, could not but leave the most complete liberty to such a manifestation.

THE LINCOLN MONUMENT CONTROVERSY.—Regarding the statements which have been made about Mrs. Lincoln and the monument to her husband, the Chicago Journal says:

> Mrs. Lincoln merely requested that the monument be erected over the remains of her lamented husband in Oak Ridge Cemetery, instead of erecting it, as was proposed in another place in the city of Springfield. This has been agreed to by the Monument Association. Mrs. Lincoln also made another request, to the effect that she and her children might be buried by the side of their beloved husband and father at death, which has also been very properly acceded to. Nothing has ever been said about a "snub," except by the careless Springfield reporter of a Chicago paper, who first gave publicity to the wrong version of the matter.

THE LOST STEAMER.—No further news has been received from the wrecked steamer. Nothing more can be learned until another messenger comes with dispatches from the scene of the disaster. All that is yet known of the catastrophe has already been sent us.

By Overland Telegraph.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

Indian Fight on the Plains—From the Overland Line

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 3.—We have just received the following from Sweetwater Bridge: I have just returned from Platte Bridge. The line is cut from about five miles west of Platte Bridge, and about half of the wire has been taken off or destroyed. The Platte Bridge operator says 25 poles are cut down. I think the line can be put in tolerable working order by to-morrow night, if there is wire enough there to repair it. The fighting commenced on the 24th ult. The Indians numbering about fifty attempted to take the herd of stock from the Post, but were repulsed, the troops charging three times and killing nine, including one of their head chiefs. On the 26th the Indians made their appearance in large numbers, estimated at from 1,000 to 3,000. A train of ten wagons with an escort of twenty-six men, on their way from Sweetwater to the Platte, consisting of the Eleventh Kansas, were attacked by the Indians four miles from the Platte [illegible] of the Post. Two hundred troops from the Post were ordered to charge the Indians and rescue the train. At the second charge the Lieutenant's horse becoming unmanageable ran and took him to their midst, where he was killed and horribly mutilated.

In the first charge three men were killed and eight wounded; in the second charge one man was killed and two wounded. Of the escort of the train only three escaped. The wagons were set on fire and the bodies of the escort were found by the Indians. On the 27th very heavy fighting occurred, in which the Indians were worsted. The fighting this day was just across the river from the Post. The total casualties thus far are 1 Lieutenant and 27 men killed and 9 wounded. No correct estimate of the Indians' loss could be formed, but it was much heavier than ours. On the evening of the 28th the Indians divided and retired, the largest portion going north, with their wounded, and the remainder south. A note was found near Lieut. Collins' body, written in a female hand, which stated that the war party was composed of Camanches, Arapahoes, Cheyennes, Sioux and Blackfeet, and that they besieged the fort for four days, and that the soldiers had killed one of the leading Indian chiefs, and the note was supposed to have been dropped by some prisoner in their hands.

Signed, MOWBERRY,
Operator at Sweet Water Bridge.

California News.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 3.—The barks Milan and Ternan, lumber vessels, arrived here last evening from Puget Sound. The Milan left Puget Sound on the 25th of July. She reports that at the mouth of the Straits of Fuca she saw a three masted steamer with all royal yards up. The Ternan left Puget Sound on the day after the Milan. She reports having seen, near the mouth of the Straits of Fuca, a large masted steamer with her royal yards all up, and that the steamer ran around her in a circle three times. The captains of the Milan and Ternan both say that the steamer was not like any of the British war steamers around Victoria, and that the description they give of this strange vessel corresponds with that given of the British pirate Shenandoah by the men of the whaling fleet. The vessel seen by the Milan was probably the British sloop of war Chameleon, which, as we are informed by the British Consul, was at that time cruising on the west coast from Esquimalt.

The steamer Colorado took 190 passengers and $158,104 treasure.

The United States steamer Saginaw will convoy the Colorado a sufficient distance to insure her safety from the Shenandoah and then start on a cruise on her own hook in search of the pirate and continue cruising about so long as her coal lasts.

The Colorado has the reputation of being the fastest steamer afloat, and if she has half a chance there is no fear of the Shenandoah getting sufficiently near her to do any damage.

Speaker Colfax delivered an address before the Odd Fellows last night. Mr. Colfax will visit Yo Semite Falls before leaving California. He will not sail until September.

A grand mass meeting of the working classes and others opposed to the repeal of the specific contract law and the introduction of greenbacks in lieu of coin, is to be held at Platt's Hall to-morrow evening.

Jas. W. Dickey, Superintendent of the Ophir Mining Company, was killed yesterday at the mine by the falling of a lot of earth and rock.

A young Mexican merchant by the name of Alfredo Watoha, from San Jose, has been missing about a week. He came to this city to buy goods, and when last seen, had about eight hundred dollars in money, and it is feared he has been murdered.

The U. S. steamer Saginaw arrived at San Pedro on Saturday last, and is expected here by the 3d inst.

The Pirate again.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 2.—The whaling bark General Pike, of New Bedford, Capt. Hebron M. Crowell arrived from Behring's Straits, with over 200 men from whalers burnt by the Shenandoah on the morning after the departure of the Milo from Gulf Anadyr. Waddell captured and destroyed the brig Susan Abigail, belonging to Shodd & Wright of San Francisco, from which she obtained papers to the 4th of May, but declared the news all Northern lies. Four other vessels were warned by Capt. Nye's party, who had started out in the night in boats and escaped. The Shenandoah not being able to get into the Sea of Okotsk, she ran into Behring's Straits and destroyed the ship Gen. Williams of New London, lying at anchor within one and a half miles of shore at St. Lawrence Island, and next morning captured in the straits the bark Wm. C. Nye, belonging to Horne & Co., San Francisco. She also captured the barks Nimrod, Catherine, Isabella, Gypsey of New Bedford, burned them and transferred their crews to the Gen. Pike, bonded her for $45,000 and told the captain to steer for San Francisco. He robbed the officers and men of everything of value he could find, and told Capt. Crowell if he got short of provisions to cook the Kanakas, of which there were 50 on board, and eat them. Two other vessels were in sight, and the whole fleet, numbering 60 vessels, was to the north and east and would probably be destroyed.

The 255 men on board the Pike suffered greatly for sleeping accommodations, cooking food in oil kettles on deck, until meeting a whaler bound north which they warned and sent back to Honolulu and thus got rid of the Kanakas. All the officers and crew are destitute of everything and must be relieved by our citizens. The Pacific Mail Company will carry them home at half price, and a number will go by next steamer. They think that Waddell, after destroying the Arctic fleet, will return to the Sea of Okotsk and destroy all the vessels there.

Capt. Crowell reports a severe earthquake in latitude 49°55' north, longitude 162°30' west, on the 4th of July, lasting 5 minutes, and another next day less severe.

The whale ship Milo arrived to-night, two days later from the pirate Shenandoah. The Milo brings portions of the crews of the following named vessels which have been burned by the Shenandoah: Ship Nassau, ship Isaac Howland, ship Hillman, bark Congress, bark Favorite, bark Waverly, bark Martha, bark Covington. The Milo was bonded and sent to this port. The ship Jo. Manry was bonded and sent to Honolulu June 29th. The Milo saw other ships burning in the Arctic.

FAREWELL ORDER OF GENERAL MEADE.—The following order was issued by General Meade on the occasion of the final disbandment of the Army of the Potomac:

> HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC,
> June 28th, 1865.
> SOLDIERS: This day two years ago I was assigned to the command of you under the orders of the President of the United States. To-day, by virtue of the same authority, the army ceasing to exist, I have to announce my transfer to other duties and my separation from you.
> It is unnecessary to enumerate all that has occurred in these two eventful years, from the grand and decisive battle of Gettysburg, the turning point of the war, to the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia at Appomattox Court House. Suffice it to say that history will do you justice. A grateful country will honor the living, cherish and support the disabled, and sincerely mourn the dead.

Benton, the purser [illegible] for information [illegible] We still indulge the hope that [illegible] the rocking breakers about the [illegible] watery graves.

A TRIP TO THE SEASHORE.—The present is a most opportune period in the year for a trip to the seaside. [illegible] dust, and powder [illegible] people sick of home, the business depression [illegible] and nothing is more invigorating to the system than the thought of an excursion to the sea-shore [illegible] "I want to go, but I cannot get away," is the universal exclamation on those who can go are off. The visitor to Astoria takes passage on the steamer John H. Couch, under the efficient command of Capt. Charles Holman, at [illegible] o'clock [illegible] day or Monday mornings [illegible] The scenery [illegible] vicinity of Oak Point, from there the widening river shows abundantly the diversified beauties of nature on a grand and lofty panorama, and the prominent points [illegible] that interest attaches to Cathlamet, the late home of M James Birnie, Three Tree point, Jim Crow point, the magnificent Pillar Rock, numerous islands, and finally the broad expanse of water. Astoria, the home town of the Pacific, has very much to entertain you. After landing at [illegible] o'clock P. M., unless other matters engage the attention of Captain Holman, he may steam up and take a party to Clatsop, but in default of securing passage by steamer Capt. Hoxie will be in readiness with his fine yacht, the Mist, to visit all the places of interest about the Bay, and two or three days with him can be profitably spent. There are numerous other crafts that can be obtained, but we speak of the Mist more particularly knowing from personal observation what she is—a safe, stable, and dry craft. The visitor, after such a cruise, will return to Portland with renewed energy, will see things in a new light, and complete his aspirations with a higher hope for the future. Experience in the matter entitles us to a good opinion of the effects, notwithstanding we met some obstacles, such as all who wish to take guns and fishing tackle along with them must expect. The growth of underbrush is prodigious about the shores of the Columbia, and the wasps there give a sufferable sting, but the trout are excellent, berries prolific, and runways of Elk and Deer numerous. Salmon were never known to be better than the fresh catch on Chinook.

CIRCUIT COURT.—Messrs. Haight & Newton obtained judgment in Circuit Court yesterday for the sum of $1400, against the delectable swindler, Champion Clay and would-be Pirate—Benjamin R. Brown, Esq. Brown is at large, in consequence of a loss of power to prosecute his case, by repealing the late law in such manner as not to save the clause for punishing certain offenses committed prior to May 1st, 1865. The tax cases of T. J. Holmes, J. Davenport, and R. White were being argued when Court adjourned last evening. The same will be resumed this morning, at the conclusion of which, testimony will be heard in the important land-title suit of Gilliham vs. Corbett, Arrigoni, and others.

CAUTION TO EVERYBODY.—Chief Engineer Buchtel, whose diligence and promptness in attending to the duties of his office, and whose suggestions, if practically carried into effect, by those having the authority to do so, would save much valuable property in time by the prevention of fires, has lately submitted a very able report of the workings of the Portland Department for the past year. It is full of interest, and contains words of caution to everybody. Carelessness is treated with a recommendation to the Council; stringent laws are advised to punish the crime of leaving matches in exposed places, building imperfect flues, &c. The report will very likely be published for the benefit of the firemen and citizens.

LOSSES BY THE BROTHER JONATHAN.—A large number of our merchants are losers by the calamity happening to the steamship Brother Jonathan, but we are without a manifest of her cargo and cannot obtain the total amounts. Probably not less than $300,000 worth of merchandise, etc., was on board, on which there is scarcely any insurance, as shippers have not generally been accustomed to insuring freight coming by steamship. We shall probably obtain a full and complete manifest upon the arrival of the next steamship.

THE FIRST TOW OF THE RABBONI.—The new steam tug, Rabboni, Capt. Corno, arrived in port yesterday, from Astoria, having in tow the schooner Alfred Crosby, Capt. Ketchum, from Victoria, which was taken in charge at Woody Island. On leaving Astoria the Rabboni had in tow the bark Almatia, Capt. Stannard, but by accident she was grounded on a point off Sauvie's Island, about two miles below the mouth of the Willamette river, and was detained until last night.

A BOY FIGHT.—Two boys engaged in a fight on Front street yesterday seemed to "understand the ropes" pretty well; as soon as a Policeman came in sight they let up on blows and made strong efforts to convince the officer that "he, not me," was to blame for it. They were reprimanded and sent home.

AMONG THE LOST.—Mr. A. L. Stiles and family, formerly of this city, but for some years absent from the State, were returning by the steamship Brother Jonathan and were among those lost. We learn that relatives of Mrs. Stiles live in the vicinity of this city.

HAVE NOT ARRIVED.—The Circus troupe expected yesterday did not arrive, on account of a detention in reaching the Dalles from Umatilla with the baggage-wagons and pavilion, the part coming over-land. The delay cannot be long, however, and the Company will shortly appear as advertised in this city.

THE ALMATIA.—The bark Almatia, with a cargo of merchandise from San Francisco, was run so hard aground yesterday morning that it required the steamer Julia to lighten the cargo before she was got off. We did not learn the cause of the accident further than that the vessel was out of the channel.

MEETING OF FOREMEN.—The Foremen of the several Fire Companies of the Portland Department will meet at the office of the Chief Engineer this evening, for the transaction of matters of importance. A full attendance is desired.

AN UNFORTUNATE CIRCUMSTANCE.—One of the many curs frequenting the streets of Portland was run over by a heavily loaded wagon yesterday, the wheel passing directly over his body. It was a most unfortunate circumstance that the dog was not killed.

TWO DAYS FOR ONE DRUNK.—The only case disposed of before Recorder Hoffman yesterday was that of a man named Osborn, who had been picked up drunk in the street. He was given two days in the City Jail, on which to get sober.

TESTED.—The Inspector of steamboat boilers yesterday tested the boiler of the new ferry boat. The craft will soon be ready to engage in the business for which it has been constructed.

VERY DRY WEATHER.—The weather still continues very hot and dry, but we enjoy cool nights. Last evening there was an excellent breeze, and sailing on the river was a luxury.

FOR FORT VANCOUVER.—Co. [illegible] California Infantry, lately stationed at Fort Yamhill, passed through the city yesterday [illegible] Fort Vancouver.

Religious Services will be held at the Baptist Church in this city during two days, commencing on Saturday, August 5th, at 11 o'clock A. M. Rev. W. Richardson of Bethel and Rev. J. [illegible] Murphy of Monmouth, of the Christian Church, will be present to conduct the services.

Petition.

To His Excellency A. C. Gibbs, Governor of Oregon:

SIR: The undersigned petitioners would most respectfully represent that a wagon road is now being constructed by an incorporated company, and near completion, connecting the valley of the Willamette with that of the Deschutes on the east side of the Cascade mountains, crossing the Cascade mountains a short distance north of the Three Sisters, thence in an eastward direction leading to the John Day mines, Canyon City, and various mining localities east of the Cascade mountains.

This road will soon be completed for all kinds of travel and already, much travel has been done over the road [illegible], and ere long it will be one of the great thoroughfares of this upper country, connecting and combining the interests of the State east and west.

Your petitioners would further represent that there is a large section of country susceptible of easy settlement and cultivation, and adapted for grazing, &c., just east of the summit of the Cascade mountains, extending for forty miles to the Deschutes river and far beyond and along said river through which the road passes, and which would be rapidly settled up by enterprising men, were it not for the fear of hostile Indians who have for years been committing depredations upon the traveling community, and the persons who have already endeavored to settle and make for themselves homes in that country.

Your petitioners would most early pray for the protection of the government, through your Excellency, and that a military force of sufficient numbers be immediately sent out and stationed at such point or points as it may be deemed proper for the protection of emigrants who are expected to enter the valley by this road this fall and, travelers and mounted settlers and laborers now engaged in opening farms along this road as well as those completing the road for the benefit of the public, and with the hope of general benefit to our whole valley.

Respectfully submitted.

There can be no excuse for this, as Sozodont, pronounced by all worthy a place between the sweetest lips, can now be had in all civilized countries.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

HAS BEEN USED FOR NEARLY

HALF A CENTURY,

WITH THE MOST ASTONISHING SUCCESS IN CURING

Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Croup, Liver Complaint, Bronchitis, Difficulty of Breathing, Asthma and every affection of the

THROAT, LUNGS, AND CHEST,

INCLUDING EVEN

CONSUMPTION.

There is scarcely one individual in the community who wholly escapes, during a season, from some one, however slightly developed, of the above symptoms—a neglect of which might lead to the last named, and most to be dreaded disease in the whole catalogue. The power of "medicinal gum" of the Wild Cherry Tree over this class of complaints is well known; so great is the good it has performed, and so great the popularity it has acquired.

In this preparation, besides the virtues of the Cherry, there are commingled with it other ingredients of like value, thus increasing its value ten fold, and forming a Remedy whose power to soothe, to heal, to relieve and to cure disease, exists in no other medicine yet discovered.

The unequalled success that has attended the application of this medicine in all cases of

has induced many physicians of high standing to employ it in their practice, some of whom advise us of the fact under their own signatures. We have space only for the names of a few of these:—

R. Boynes, M. D., Exeter, Me.

H. D. Martin, M. D., Mansfield, Pa.

The proprietors have letters from all classes in our fellow citizens, from the halls of Congress to the humblest cottage, and even from beyond the seas; for the fame and virtue of Wistar's Balsam have extended to the uttermost bounds of the earth, without any attempt on our part to introduce it beyond the limits of our own country.

TO CALIFORNIANS AND OREGONIANS.

After October 1, 1865, all genuine WISTAR'S BALSAM of WILD CHERRY for the Pacific Coast will be enclosed in a new wrapper which will bear the printed names of both SETH W. Personal Recollections of Abraham Lincoln

BY "CASTINE" (NOAH BROOKS.)

From Harper's Magazine for July

(Concluded.)

Lincoln visited the Army of the Potomac in the spring of 1863, and, freed from the annoyances of office, was considerably refreshed and rested; but even then the mental anxieties which never forsook him seemed to cast him down, at times, with a great weight. We left Washington late in the afternoon, and a snow storm soon after coming on, the steamer was anchored for the night off Indian Head, on the Maryland shore of the Potomac. The President left the little knot in the cabin, and sitting alone in a corner, seemed absorbed in the saddest reflections for a time; then beckoning a companion to him said, "What will you wager that half our iron-clads are at the bottom of Charleston harbor?" This being the first intimation which the other had had of Dupont's attack, which was then begun, hesitated to reply, when the President added, "The people will expect big things when they hear of this; but it is too late—too late!"

During that voyage the Captain of the steamer, a frank, modest old sailor, was so much affected by the careworn appearance of the President, that he came to the writer and confessed that he had received the same impression of the Chief Magistrate that many had; hearing of his little stories and humor, he had supposed him to have no cares or sadness; but a sight of that anxious and sad face had undeceived him, and he wanted to tell the President how much he had unintentionally wronged him, feeling that he had committed upon him a personal wrong. The Captain was duly introduced to the President, who talked with him privately for a space, being touched as well as amused at what he called "Captain M——'s freeing his mind."

The following week, spent in riding about and seeing the army, appeared to revive Lincoln's spirits and to rest his body. A friend present observed as much to him, and he replied, "Well, yes, I do feel somewhat better, I think; but, somehow, it don't appear to touch the tired spot, which can't be got at." And that, by-the-way, reminded him of a little story of his once having used the word "spot" a great many times in the course of a speech in Congress, years ago, so that some of his fellow members called him "spot Lincoln," but that he believed that the nickname did not stick. Another reminiscence of his early life which he recalled during the trip, was one concerning his experience in rail-splitting. We were driving through an open clearing, where the Virginia forest had been felled by the soldiers, when Lincoln observed, looking at the stumps: "That's a good job of felling; they have got some good axmen in this army, I see." The conversation turning upon his knowledge of rail-splitting, he said: "Now let me tell you about that. I am not a bit anxious about my reputation in that line of business; but if there is anything in the world that I am a judge of, it is of good felling of timber; but I don't remember having worked by myself at splitting rails for one whole day in my life." Upon surprise being expressed that his national reputation as a rail-splitter should have so slight a foundation, he said: "I recollect that, some time during the canvass for the office I now hold, there was a great mass meeting, where I was present; and with a great flourish several rails were brought into the meeting, and being informed where they came from, I was asked to identify them, which I did, with some qualms of conscience, having helped my father to split rails, as at other odd jobs. I said if there were any rails which I had split, I shouldn't wonder if those were the rails." Those who may be disappointed to learn of Lincoln's limited experience in splitting rails, may be relieved to know that he was evidently proud of his knowledge of the art of cutting timber, and explained minutely how a good job differed from a poor one, giving illustrations from the ugly stumps on either side.

An amusing yet touching instance of the President's preoccupation of mind occurred at one of his levees, when he was shaking hands with a host of visitors, passing him in a continuous stream. An intimate acquaintance received the usual conventional hand-shake and salutation; but perceiving that he was not recognized, kept his ground, instead of moving on, and spoke again; when the President, roused by a dim consciousness that something unusual had happened, perceived who stood before him, and seizing his friend's hand, shook it heartily again, saying, "How do you do? How do you do? Excuse me for not noticing you at first; the fact is, I was thinking of a man down South." He afterward privately acknowledged that the "man down South" was Sherman, then on his march to the sea.

Lincoln had not a hopeful temperament, and, though he looked at the bright side of things, was always prepared for disaster, and defeat. With his wonderful faculty for discerning results he often saw success where others saw disaster, but oftener perceived a failure when others were elated with victory, or were temporarily deceived by appearances. Of a great cavalry raid, which filled the newspapers with glowing exultation, but failed to cut the communications which it had been designed to destroy, he briefly said: "That was good circus-riding; it will do to fill a column in the newspapers; but I don't see that it has brought anything else to pass." He often said that the worst feature about newspapers was that they were so sure to be "ahead of the hounds," out-running events, and exciting expectations which were sure to be disappointed. One of the worst effects of a victory, he said, was to lead people to expect that the war was about over in consequence of it; but he was never weary of commending the patience of the American people, which he thought sometimes matchless and touching. I have seen him shed tears when speaking of the cheerful sacrifice of the light and strength of so many happy homes throughout the land. His own patience was marvellous; and never crushed at defeat or unduly excited by success, his demeanor under both was an example for all men. Once he said the hardest blow of all the war was at an early stage, when the disaster of Ball's Bluff and the death of his beloved Baker smote upon him like a whirlwind from a desert.

It is generally agreed that Lincoln's slowness was a prominent trait of his character; but it is too early, perhaps, to say how much of our safety and success we owe to his slowness. It may be said, however, that he is to-day admired and beloved as much for what he did not do as for what he did. He was well aware of the popular opinion concerning his slowness, but was only sorry that such a quality of mind should sometimes be coupled with weakness and vacillation. Such an accusation he thought to be unjust. Acknowledging that he was slow in arriving at conclusions, he said that he could not help that; but he believed that when he did arrive at conclusions they were clear and "stuck by." He was a profound believer in his own fixity of purpose, and took pride in saying that his long deliberations made it possible for him to stand by his own acts when they were once resolved upon. It would have been a relief to the country at one time in our history if this trait of the President's character had been better understood. There was no time, probably, during the last Administration, when any of the so-called radical measures were in any danger of being qualified or recalled. The simple explanation of the doubt which often hung over his purposes may be found in the fact that it was a habit of his mind to put forward all of the objections of other people and of his own to any given proposition, to see what argument or counter statements could be brought against them. While his own mind might be perfectly clear upon the subject, it gave him real pleasure to state objections for others to combat or attempt to set aside.

His practice of being controlled by events is well known. He often said that it was wise to wait for the developments of Providence; and the Scriptural phrase that "the stars in their course fought against Sisera" to him had a depth of meaning. Then, too, he liked to feel that he was the attorney of the people, not their ruler; and I believe that this idea was generally uppermost in his mind. Speaking of the probability of his second nomination, about two years ago he said: "If the people think I have managed their case for them well enough to trust me to carry up to the next term, I am sure that I shall be glad to take it."

He liked to provide for his friends, who were often remembered gratefully for services given him in his early struggles in life. Sometimes he would "break the slate," as he called it, of those who were making up a list of appointments, that he might insert the name of some old acquaintance who had befriended him in days when friends were few. He was not deceived by outside appearances, but took the measure of those he met, and few men were worth any more or any less than the value which Abraham Lincoln set upon them.

Upon being told that a gentleman upon whom he was about to confer a valuable appointment had been bitterly opposed to his renomination, he said: "I suppose that Judge ——, having been disappointed before, did behave pretty ugly; but that wouldn't make him any less fit for this place, and I have a Scriptural authority for appointing him. You recollect that while the Lord on Mount Sinai was getting out a commission for Aaron, that same Aaron was at the foot of the mountain making a false god, a golden calf, for the people to worship; yet Aaron got his commission, you know." At another time, when remonstrated with upon the appointment to place of one of his former opponents he said: "Nobody will deny that he is a first-rate [illegible] [illegible] to see that he [illegible] people a good officer."

The world will never hear the last of the "little stories" with which the President garnished and illustrated his conversation and his early stump speeches. He said, however, that as near as he could reckon, about one sixth of those which were credited to him were old acquaintances; all of the rest were the productions of other and better story-tellers than himself. Said he: "I do generally remember a good story when I hear it, but I never did invent anything original; I am only a retail dealer." His anecdotes were seldom told for the sake of the telling, but because they fitted in just where they came, and shed a light on the argument that nothing else could. He was not witty, but brimful of humor; and though he was quick to appreciate a good pun, I never knew of his making but one, which was on the Christian name of a friend, to whom he said: "You have yet to be elected to the place I hold; but Noah's reign was before Abraham." He thought the chief characteristic of American humor was its grotesqueness and extravagance; and the story of the man who was so tall that he was "laid out in a rope-walk," the soprano voice so high that it had to be "climbed over" by a ladder, and the Dutchman's expression of "somebody tying his dog loose," all made a permanent lodgment in his mind.

His accuracy and memory were wonderful, and one illustration of the former quality may be given in the remarkable correspondence between the figures of the last Presidential election and the actual sum total. The President's figures, collected hastily, and partially based upon his own estimates, made up only four weeks after the election, have been found to be only one hundred and twenty-nine less in their grand total than that made up by McPherson, the Clerk of the House of Representatives, who has compiled a table from the returns furnished him from the official records of all the State Capitals in the loyal States.

Latterly Lincoln's reading was with the humorous writers. He liked to repeat from memory whole chapters from these books; and on such occasions he always preserved his own gravity though his auditors might be convulsed with laughter. He said that he had a dread of people who could not appreciate the fun of such things; and he once instanced a member of his own Cabinet, of whom he quoted the saying of Sydney Smith, "that it required a surgical operation to get a joke into his head." The light trifles spoken of diverted his mind, or, as he said of his theatre going, gave him refuge from himself and his weariness. But he also was a lover of many philosophical books, and particularly liked Butler's Analogy of Religion, Stuart Mill on Liberty, and he always hoped to get at President Edwards on the Will. These ponderous writers found a queer companionship in the chronicler of the Mackerel Brigade, Parson Nasby and Private Miles O'Reilly. The Bible was a very familiar study with the President, whole chapters of Isaiah, the New Testament, and the Psalms being fixed in his memory, and he would sometimes correct a misquotation of Scripture, giving generally the chapter and verse where it could be found. He liked the Old Testament best, and dwelt on the simple beauty of the historical books. Once, speaking of his own age and strength, he quoted with admiration that passage, "His eye was not dim, nor his natural force abated." I do not know that he thought then how, like that Moses of old, he was to stand on Pisgah and see a peaceful land which he was not to enter.

Of the poets the President appeared to prefer Hood and Holmes, the mixture and pathos in their writings being attractive to him beyond anything else which he read. Of the former author he liked best the last part of "Miss Kilmansegg and her Golden Leg," "Faithless Sally Brown," and one or two others not generally so popular as those which are called Hood's best poems. Holmes' "September Gale," "Last Leaf," "Chambered Nautilus," and "Ballad of an Oysterman" were among his very few favorite poems. Longfellow's "Psalm of Life" and "Birds of Killingworth" were the only productions of that author he ever mentioned with praise, the latter of which he picked up somewhere in a newspaper, cut out and carried in his vest pocket until it was committed to memory. James Russell Lowell he only knew as "Hosea Biglow," every one of whose effusions he knew. He sometimes repeated, word for word, the whole of "John P. Robinson he," giving the the unceasing refrain with great unction and enjoyment. He once said that originality and daring impudence were sublimed in this stanza of Lowell's:

"Ef you take a sword and dror it,
An' stick a feller creetur thru,
Gov'ment hain't to answer for it,
God'll send the bill to you."

Lincoln's love of music was something passionate, but his tastes were simple and uncultivated, his choice being old airs, songs and ballads, among which the plaintive Scotch songs were best liked. "Annie Laurie," "Mary of Argyle," and especially "Auld Robin Gray," never lost their charm for him; and all songs which had for their theme the rapid flight of time, decay, the recollection of other days, were sure to make a deep impression. The song which he liked best, above all others, was one called "Twenty Years Ago"—a simple air, the words of which are supposed to be uttered by a man who revisits the play-ground of his youth. He greatly desired to find music for his favorite poem, "Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?" and said once, when told that the newspapers had credited him with the authorship of the piece: "I should not care much for the reputation of having written that, but would be glad if I could compose music as fit to convey the sentiment as the words now do."

He wrote slowly, and with the greatest deliberation, and liked to take his time; yet some of his dispatches, written without any corrections, are models of compactness and finish. His private correspondence was extensive, and he preferred writing his letters with his own hand, making copies himself frequently, and filing everything away in a set of pigeon-holes in his office. When asked why he did not have letter-book and a copy press, he said: "A letter-book might be easily carried off, but that stock of filed letters would be a back-load." He conscientiously attended to his enormous correspondence, and read everything that appeared to demand his own attention. He said he read with great regularity the letters of an old friend who lived on the Pacific coast until he received a letter of seventy pages of letter paper, when he broke down, and never read another.

People were sometimes disappointed because he appeared before them with a written speech. The best explanation of that habit of his was his remark to a friend who noticed a roll of manuscript in the hand of the President as he came into the parlor while waiting for the serenade which was given him on the night of his re-election. Said he: "I know what you are thinking about; but there's no clap-trap about me; and I am free to say that in the excitement of the moment I am sure to say something which I am sorry for when I see it in print; so I have it here in black and white, and there are no mistakes made. People attach too much importance to what I say any how." Upon another occasion, hearing that I was in the parlor, he sent for me to come up into the library, where I found him writing on a piece of common stiff box-board with a pencil. Said he after he had finished, "Here is one speech of mine which has never been printed, and I think it worth printing. Just see what you think." He then read the following, which is copied verbatim from the familiar handwriting before me:

"On Thursday of last week two ladies from Tennessee came before the President, asking the release of their husbands, held as prisoners of war at Johnson's Island. They were put off until Friday, when they came again; and were again put off until Saturday. At each one of the interviews one of the ladies urged that her husband was a religious man. On Saturday, when the President ordered the release of the prisoners, he said to this lady: 'You say your husband is a religious man; tell him when you meet him that I say I am not much of a judge of religion, but that, in my opinion, the religion that sets men to rebel and fight against their Government, because, as they think, that Government does not sufficiently help some men to eat their bread on the sweat of other men's faces, is not the sort of religion upon which people can get to heaven.'"

To this the President signed his name at my request, by way of joke, and added for a caption "The President's Last, Shortest and Best Speech," under which title it was duly published in one of the Washington newspapers. His message of the last session of Congress was first written upon the same sort of white pasteboard above referred to, its stiffness enabling him to lay it on his knee as he sat easily in his arm chair, writing and erasing as he thought and wrought out his idea.

The already extended limits of this article will not permit anything more than a mention of many of the traits of Lincoln's peculiar character, many of which are already widely known by his published writings and speeches, and by the numerous anecdotes which have been narrated by others who have been ready to meet the general desire to know more of the man whose life was so dear to the people. His thoughtfulness for those who have borne the brunt of battle, his tenderness in family relations, his absorbing love for his children, his anxiety for the well-being and conduct of the emancipated colored people, his unwavering faith in the hastening doom of human slavery, his affectionate regard for "the simple people," his patience, his endurance, his mental suffering, and what he did for the nation and for humanity and liberty—these all must be left to the systematic and enduring labors of the historian. Though he is dead his immortal virtues are the rich possessions of the nation; his fame shall grow with the young Republic; and as years roll on, [illegible] will shine the name of Abraham Lincoln.

LILLIE'S LOCK OPENED

GLOUCESTER, March 26, 1864.
Messrs. TILTON & McFARLAND,
Safe Manufacturers, Boston, Mass.
Gentlemen: From representations made by Mr. Lillie, I was induced to purchase of him one of his [illegible]
So Called "Fire Proof Safes."
On the 18th of February last a fire occurred in our block which destroyed a number of buildings, and our own with the rest. We trusted our books, papers and all in the safe. After the fire the so-called "safe" was taken from the ruins, and on opening it we found that Everything had been Destroyed.
We send you the safe, with what is left of the papers, and you will see that not one of them is legible or strong enough to sustain its own weight. Having the curiosity to know how our neighbors fared in this fire, we visited McKenzie & Hardy just opening their safe (TILTON & McFARLAND'S make,) and its contents were found to be In Perfect Condition.
This led us to further investigation, and we found to our astonishment that from the large amount of combustible material in Messrs. McK. & H.'s cellar—such as lard, pork, etc., their safe was subjected to a much greater heat than that of our own, we being in the clothing business and had but little in the cellar. There was another of Lillie's safes here subjected to the same fire, faring, however, no better than ours.
Very respectfully,
Your obedient servants,
(Signed:) GEO. L. CHESBORO & CO.
TILTON & M'FARLAND'S

For the last Fifteen Years
This Safe has been well known in California and the Eastern States. They have resisted all the fires on the Pacific Coast, and we can point with satisfaction to the record that out of one of our Safes by means of Burglars. Their fire and burglar proof qualities are so well known that they need no further recommendation.

A good assortment of Tilton & McFarland's Fire and Burglar Proof Safes to be had at 318 Battery Street, San Francisco.

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES!
Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

San Francisco, [illegible] for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.
DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of [illegible] that he has returned to this State, after an absence of one year, during which time he has visited [illegible] hospitals of Europe, [illegible] London and Paris. [illegible] among those [illegible] Guy's, High street, Borough; St. Bartholomew's, [illegible] St. Mary's, [illegible] Place, [illegible] Lock, Harrow road; St. Luke's, Old street; University, Gower street; [illegible] Broad Sanctuary; [illegible] Cross, [illegible] Strand, London, [illegible] Royal Free, Gray's Inn road; King's College, Portugal street.
DOCTOR GIBBON has also visited [illegible] Acton of London, Parker of [illegible] and Ricord of Paris; who are justly considered the best physicians and surgeons in the world, and whose authority is acknowledged to be the highest in the treatment of Sexual Diseases.
DOCTOR GIBBON has [illegible] from these their new mode of treatment which cannot be [illegible]
DOCTOR GIBBON has spared neither [illegible] nor means in seeking out new [illegible] and has returned with new facilities for the alleviation of [illegible]
Horrible Diseases.
How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of sexual indiscretion, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their [illegible] sunken and disfigured faces and their [illegible] constitutions, disqualifying them for the [illegible] of married life or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid [illegible] thousands suffer until death closes the [illegible] Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are [illegible] with any of these horrible life-destroying [illegible] that they are cared for and cured. [illegible] too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his [illegible] study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, [illegible] their skill in curing all [illegible] in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of [illegible] of physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans.
Seminal Weakness.
[illegible], the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania, and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.
DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.
Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease had continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.
Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 617 Kearney street, near Commercial, San Francisco. Post Office Box 252.

Prevention Better than Cure.
The newly invented Patent French Safe, a sure Preventive against Disease and Pregnancy, sent by mail. Price $2. Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 617 Kearney St., near Commercial, San Francisco. Postoffice Box 252.
Caution to the Unfortunate.
Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn to certificates, dupe the unwary. Some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco, are tradesmen, and became too lazy to work at their trades, some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. Look over the San Francisco Directory and you will not find their Medical Institutes in it, but you will find their former occupations [illegible] Look at the Directory for 1862 and 1863. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing and may save you many regrets; for as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Doctor Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Doctor Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat diseases that he professes to cure.
Consultations FREE.
